“The University of Toronto ... produced a detailed analysis to the extent of which each G20 country has met its commitments since the last summit ... I think this is important; we come to these summits, we make these commitments, we say we are going to do these things and it is important that there is an organisation that checks up on who has done what.”

— David Cameron, Prime Minister, United Kingdom, at the 2012 Los Cabos Summit

* Note: For seven commitments, the assessment period was from 8 July 2017 to 9 January; for the remaining 10 commitments, the assessment period extended to 5 March 2018.

Background

Inclusive business has been an integral focus of the G20 since the 2011 Cannes Summit when G20 members adopted a working definition of inclusive business as “a private sector approach to providing goods, services, and livelihoods on a commercially viable basis, either at scale or scalable, to people at the base of the pyramid by making them part of the value chain of companies’ core business as suppliers, distributors, retailers, or customers.”<sup>1909</sup>

G20 leaders have addressed issues related to small and medium-sized businesses (SMEs) at each summit since the 2009 Pittsburgh Summit. However, their commitments in this area in the past have focused on providing assistance to private businesses and stimulating financial inclusion, rather than on coordinating partnership and learning between the public and private sector.<sup>1910</sup>

<sup>1910</sup> G20 Leaders Statement: The Pittsburgh Summit, G20 Information Centre (Toronto) 25 September 2009. Access Date: 28 October 2017. <http://www.g20.utoronto.ca/2009/2009communique0925.html>.

At the 2015 Antalya Summit, the G20 endorsed the G20 Inclusive Business Framework which set out recommendations to address the challenges that inclusive businesses face. These challenges include rules and regulations that are not adapted to inclusive businesses, lack of information about balance of payments (BOP) consumers' needs, preferences and consumption patterns, as well as market research especially at the local level, lack of financing resources and the lack of infrastructure in BOP markets. According to the Framework, "the G20 is uniquely positioned to advance the inclusive business agenda by virtue of its membership, global leadership function, and multi-stakeholder convening power."<sup>1911</sup> At the 2015 Antalya Summit, the G20 also issued a Leaders' Call on Inclusive Business which emphasized the importance of the private sector as an essential provider of income, jobs, goods, and services that can advance inclusive growth and development.<sup>1912</sup> It also stated that governments have an important role to play in enabling companies to pursue inclusive business models and integrate the BOP into their core business operations as a conducive enabling environment and a well-functioning financial infrastructure can help other stakeholders to effectively serve inclusive businesses.<sup>1913</sup>

At the 2016 Hangzhou Summit and more recently at the 2017 Hamburg Summit, the focus for economic growth has shifted to accelerating action and innovation within the public and the private sector,<sup>1914</sup> and on facilitating greater coordination and faster learning.<sup>1915</sup>

At the 2016 Hangzhou Summit, the G20 placed inclusive business at the core of the G20 agenda as inclusive business harnesses "market forces to integrate the base of the pyramid (BOP) into global value chains, thereby improving access to affordable quality products and services, enhancing productivity, and generating new income through decent work and livelihood opportunities. Inclusive businesses promote sustainable development in all its dimensions-economic, social, and environmental."<sup>1916</sup> At the 2016 Hangzhou Summit, the G20 also endorsed the "G20 Global Platform on Inclusive Business," which seeks to connect policymakers and business to promote inclusive growth that is both pro-poor and pro-business and strives to better understand the role that G20 and non-G20 governments can play in supporting inclusive companies more effectively.<sup>1917</sup>

In an effort to further contribute to achieving the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development, including the Sustainable Development Goals, the G20 has committed to using inclusive business and globalization as an engine for economic growth at the 2017 Hamburg Summit.<sup>1918</sup> The commitment addresses the following SDGs: no poverty (goal 1), decent work and economic growth

(goal 8), reduced inequalities (goal 10), and partnerships for the goals (goal 17).<sup>1919</sup> The commitment on inclusive business made at the 2017 Hamburg Summit addresses coordination between the private and public sector using three collective actions: (1) using the Global Platform on Inclusive Business to grow the evidence and analytical base around inclusive business, improve knowledge and learning towards better enabling environments for inclusive business; (2) facilitating learning, dialogue and exchanges of experiences and good practices among all stakeholders such as the private sector and governments with the objective of agreeing on the characteristics of productive inclusive business ecosystems and developing effective policy instruments and practical tools; (3) exploring ways of improving access to global value chains for inclusive businesses, encourage its replication and scaling-up towards sustainable development, and request development finance to better address inclusive business financing requirements.<sup>1920</sup>

Commitment Features

The objective of this commitment is to agree on the characteristics of productive inclusive business ecosystems and develop effective policy instruments and practical tools through effective partnerships between the public and private sector. This commitment is divided into three parts: facilitate learning, support dialogue between private sector and governments, and exchange experiences and good practices.

Part One: Facilitate Learning

The G20 has committed to facilitate learning between the public and private sector in order to promote inclusive growth and partnership between the public and private sector.<sup>1921</sup> This includes, but is not limited to, providing forums for peer-learning such as a public-private committees for inclusive business and high-level conferences that bring together decision makers from private industry, the public sector, and the donor community with the aim of agreeing on the characteristics of productive inclusive business ecosystems and developing effective policy instruments and practical tools.

Part Two: Dialogue between Private Sector and Governments

The G20 has committed to support dialogue between private sector and governments. Dialogue can be, but is not limited to, meetings, conferences, consultations and other exchanges of discourse on inclusive businesses among governments, G20 members, the private sector and other stakeholders such as research institutes, business councils, non-governmental organizations, Business 20 (B20) on topics related to inclusive business with the aim of agreeing on the characteristics of productive inclusive business ecosystems and developing effective policy instruments and practical tools.

Part Three: Exchange of Experiences and Good Practices

In order to comply with this part of the commitment, G20 members must take action to promote the exchange of experiences and good practices between the private and public sectors. This includes, but is not limited to, knowledge exchange, and identification of good practices in inclusive business policies and in policy making between the public and private sector and other stakeholders with the aim of agreeing on the characteristics of productive inclusive business ecosystems and developing effective policy instruments and practical tools.

For partial compliance, a G20 member must comply with one to two components of the commitment, either facilitate learning, support dialogue or exchange experiences and good practices between the public sector and the private sector. companies' growth through the reduction of taxes and promotion of competition.<sup>1925</sup> Furthermore, Marcos Peña, the new Cabinet Chief, promised to stabilize Argentina through removal of “currency controls” and a “settlement of debt deal” to “normalize the economy and re-enter the global market.”<sup>1926</sup> This dialogue amongst leaders in the private sector and government officials demonstrates the government's efforts to foster a productive inclusive business ecosystem through the use of policy tools such as reduction of taxes and the removal of currency controls.

On 24 August 2017, the Argentine Chamber of Commerce hosted its fourteenth annual conference in Buenos Aires.<sup>1927</sup> The 2017 Latin American Cities Conferences: Buenos Aires<sup>1928</sup> brought together key government officials, legislators, and private sector leaders to address Argentina's economic outlook, as well as the country's political prospects leading up to the October legislative elections.<sup>1929</sup>

On 19 September 2017, Panama, Argentina and Chile contributed to establishing a new Gender Parity Task Force to increase the number of women entering and progressing in the labour market.<sup>1930</sup>

On 30 November 2017, Argentina banned more than 60 activists from environmental and anti-globalisation groups from a World Trade Organization ministerial meeting held in Buenos Aires in December.<sup>1931</sup> Argentina had agreed to “host an international gathering,” but denied “entry to people who were accredited by the host organization.” This demonstrates a failure of the Argentinian government to instill inclusive ecosystem and encourage exchange of good practice.<sup>1932</sup>

On 4 October 2017, “Energy & Infrastructure Finance Argentina” brought together leading investors, bankers, project developers and government officials to discuss which projects would be on the table and how the government was going to make them an attractive investment opportunity for the private sector.<sup>1933</sup>

On 7 December 2017, the Atlantic Council, in partnership with HSBC, hosted “Argentina’s Transformations: Open to the World.” The half-day conference at the Alvear Palace Hotel in Buenos Aires focused on Argentina’s political and economic transformations, and its reinsertion into the world. Conference speakers included Francisco Cabrera, Argentine Minister of Production; Susana Malcorra, advisor to the Government of the Argentine Republic and head of the Eleventh Ministerial Conference of the World Trade Organization; and Lorena Zicker, general manager for Argentina at Intel Corporation. The event brought together leaders from Argentinian government, international organization, and the private sector.<sup>1934</sup>

On 10-13 December 2017, the government of Argentina hosted the 11th World Trade Organization’s (WTO) Ministerial Conference in Buenos Aires.<sup>1935</sup> On 12 December, the Argentine government organized an official “Business Forum” to ensure constructive engagement between business and the WTO process.<sup>1936</sup> The Business Forum took place in partnership between the Argentine Ministry of Production, the International Chamber of Commerce, the World Economic Forum and the B20.<sup>1937</sup> The Business Forum addressed key trade issues such as helping micro, small and medium-sized enterprises do business across borders, trade in agriculture, investment facilitation and how trade can support gender equality.<sup>1938</sup>

Argentina has partially complied with its commitment to facilitate learning, dialogue and exchanges of experiences and good practices among all stakeholders such as the private sector and governments with the objective of agreeing on the characteristics of productive inclusive business ecosystems and developing effective policy instruments and practical tools. While Argentina has demonstrated an effort to promote good practices specifically for gender equality, it failed to provide an inclusive environment for discussion during the WTO meeting in Buenos Aires.

Thus, Argentina receives a score of 0.

On 9 May 2017, the Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade's Minister, Ewen McDonald, attended the Shared Value Leadership Summit in New York City.<sup>1940</sup> At the summit, he gave a presentation to primarily private sector actors on opportunities for future partnership as well as areas in which the Australian government was particularly interested in finding collaborators in the future.<sup>1941</sup> There was also discussion of private sector cooperation in the realm of development.<sup>1942</sup>

reviewed the India-EU Strategic Partnership and committed to enhancing investment flows, broadening economic dialogue, and strengthening their cooperation on issues such as food security and the participation of Indian business organizations in the Enterprise Europe Network.<sup>2143</sup>

On 5 December 2017, the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development published a report titled “The Missing Entrepreneurs 2017,” in partnership with the European Commission, the European Union’s Directorate General of Employment and Social Affairs.<sup>2144</sup> The report examines the barriers faced to business creation and self-employment by people who are disadvantaged or under-represented in entrepreneurship activities - youth, seniors, the disabled, women, ethnic minorities, the unemployed and others - and the public policy actions that can promote and support these activities.<sup>2145</sup>

On 23-25 January 2018, the EU attended the Davos Forum hosted by the World Economic Forum.<sup>2146</sup> The EU delegation met with their counterparts from Japan, the United States, Korea, New Zealand and Argentina and executives of global companies such as Nestlé, Heineken, Facebook, Marsh & McLennan, AT&T, ABInBev, Siemens, UPS, Alibaba, Arcelor Mittal and Maersk.<sup>2147</sup>

The EU has fully complied with its commitment to facilitate learning, dialogue and exchanges of experiences and good practices among all stakeholders such as the private sector and governments with the objective of agreeing on the characteristics of productive inclusive business ecosystems and developing effective policy instruments and practical tools.

Thus, the European Union receives a score of +1.
